8. Common Themes and Institutional Practices

- Prevention through early induction and orientation of new students.
- Clear communication of the legal and disciplinary consequences of ragging.
- Anti-Ragging Pledge/Oath as a recurring institutional commitment.
- Use of creative and participatory methods such as slogans, posters, essays, collage, logo design, sketching, street play, debate and photography.
- Direct engagement with external/legal stakeholders, including police and law faculty.
- Hostel-level monitoring and faculty visits as preventive measures.
- Availability of reporting, grievance and support mechanisms.
- Formal committee/squad structures and documented undertakings.
- Emphasis on dignity, equality, mutual respect, empathy, mental well-being and a safe/inclusive campus.

9. Overall Conclusion

The supplied institutional records demonstrate that anti-ragging activities during 2026–27 were implemented through a combination of awareness, student participation, legal education, pledge-taking, creative communication, physical and residential monitoring, and formal committee mechanisms. While the specific programmes varied by institution, the reports consistently placed prevention, early awareness, student welfare, reporting, mutual respect and a ragging-free learning environment at the centre of their activities.
